27th Annual FCBA Charity Auction a Success!

On the evening before Veterans Day, the communications bar gathered to raise money for Miriam’s Kitchen and their work to end veteran homelessness in DC. The 27th annual FCBA Charity Auction was a huge success, raising money to benefit both Miriam’s Kitchen and the FCBA Foundation. Thanks to great prizes, generous bidders, and celebrity emcees Tom Power and Megan Stull, the auction raised close to $97,000.

This year featured exciting one-of-a-kind prizes, including a dinner with Washington Post food critic Tom Sietsema, tickets to a taping of The Daily Show, and a one-week getaway to Mexico.

The highlight of the evening was the speech by Army Medical Corps veteran Bill Whitner, sharing his experience with Miriam’s Kitchen. Formerly homeless, he told the crowd that he was now looking forward to hosting Thanksgiving in his own home, thanks to the work of Miriam’s Kitchen. He thanked the FCBA and the auction attendees, and emphasized how much good that Miriam's Kitchen has accomplished.

“How lucky are we to have been the charity beneficiary for the 2016 auction. And even better that we got to bring together our favorite people on Veterans Day Eve to celebrate our joint progress in ending veteran homelessness in our nation’s capital!” said Ashley Lawson, director of corporate partnerships for Miriam’s Kitchen.

This year’s auction was successful thanks to the work of several individuals, particularly Auction Chair, Kristine Fargotstein. In addition, this year’s sponsors made this event possible: AT&T, Cahill Gordon & Reindel LLP, Consumer Technology Association (CTA)™, Cooley LLP, Covington & Burling LLP, CTIA, Davis Wright Tremaine LLP, DISH Network, Harris, Wiltshire & Grannis LLP, Hogan Lovells US LLP, T-Mobile US, Inc., Wiley Rein LLP, Wilkinson Barker Knauer, LLP, and Willkie Farr & Gallagher LLP.

The auction also depends on donors and attendees, as well as those who purchase raffle tickets. We raised $14,000 from raffle sales, with FCBA member Lynne Milne selling 256 tickets alone! Another important component of the auction is the online auction, where bidders purchased items like Disney vacation packages and lift tickets to local ski resorts.

Finally, the hard work of volunteers is a vital part of the auction’s success. Thanks to the many young lawyers and law students who donate their time and efforts to planning a wonderful night, soliciting prizes and organizing the event.

Thanks to everyone who attended, participated, volunteered, and donated to this year’s Charity Auction. We look forward to the 28th annual Charity Auction next year!

Joe Di Scipio, Senior Vice President, Legal and FCC Compliance, Fox Television

By: Laura Phillips

You may know Joe Di Scipio as that guy with the red beard and the booming voice who has urged us all to quickly take our seats at the annual FCBA Chairman’s Dinner. But Joe has many talents beyond his voice and instant recognition factor. He has held virtually every leadership position in the organization, including as a Young Lawyer Co-Chair, as Chair of the FCBA Foundation, and as President of the FCBA during the 2013-14 FCBA year. When Joe is not helping out the FCBA in one way or another, he is at Fox Television here in DC, working as a Senior Vice President, Legal and FCC Compliance. I had a great time catching up with Joe over lunch right before Thanksgiving.

Q: What attracted you to the field of communications?

A: Well, my first job out of college was at the FCC’s Denver Field Office working in the Public Affairs Office. I stayed there for three years and I learned a tremendous amount about communications, which I found to be very interesting. What really struck me, however, was that the lawyers in many if not all cases, appeared to be the decision makers, so that was what started me on the path to communications law.

Q: Have things unfolded in your career more or less the way you planned?

A: I headed to Syracuse Law, where I was able to simultaneously earn a law degree and an MPA. It was always my intent to come back and work at the FCC in Washington as a lawyer, but it is always tough to get those jobs right out of law school. I had accepted a position at Sherman and Sterling in New York City but was able to get hired on at the FCC’s Compliance and Information Bureau in 1995 upon graduation. After a few years I went to Cohn and Marks, where I worked for seven years and was a partner. Then an opportunity presented itself and I moved to become a partner at Fletcher, Heald & Hildreth, where I was for four years. Fox Television came after me in the fall of 2009, and I have had a great run in house at Fox getting in the weeds on a range of M&A, licensing and retransmission arrangement issues.

Q: What’s the most challenging part of your current position and why?

A: Complacency can creep into some of what I do because certain regulatory cycles repeat. Honestly, there are some aspects of what I do where I can say for sure that I know the subject well at this stage of my career and at my level of experience. But you have to avoid becoming too comfortable and look to find new things and new nuance even in something you think you know.

Q: What do you enjoy reading in your spare time?

A: In addition to the Washington Post and Wall Street Journal, I am a fiction reader. I am currently working my way slowly through “Jerusalem” by Alan Moore and the last book I read before that was “Barkskins” by Annie Proulx.

Q: Can you share a perspective on pitfalls to avoid or other career advice for those who are just getting started in the communications field?

A: FCBA is a great way to begin or to continue the sort of networking that is valuable and rewarding. At least in my experience, FCBA members willingly give their time and advice to anyone who wants to be mentored. I often have found my FCBA colleagues to have helpful perspectives on handling career decisions, so I would recommend using other FCBA members for this, so long as you are also willing to do the same for others.

Beyond networking and making yourself available so that you form ties with other FCBA members, I have to stress as well the need to do research before walking into a job interview. My own story in this is illuminating. When I was getting that first job out of college at the FCCs Denver Field Office, I had my then girlfriend call the FCC and ask them what they did (I had no idea what the FCC did). She was really nice and did that for me. And I felt that having that information made the interview go better in that I had something to discuss that demonstrated I had at least done some basic research about the agency. I was told later that simply having that fundamental grounding in what the agency did was what set me apart from other job candidates and ended up being the deciding factor – I was the only one who knew what the FCC did. You heard it from me, so do your research before you interview, whether for a job or just an informational interview.

Q: What’s something interesting about you that people are not generally aware of you that are willing to share?

A: I am a huge drum core fan. It all started because I was in my high school marching band; I played drums. Anyway, as a present to myself way back in 1989 when I graduated from college, I went to my first drum core championship.

I was hooked and I have made it a priority to go to the annual drum core championships pretty much ever since. They are held all over the country and it’s a real highlight for me each year to attend. My status as avid fan is pretty well established by now.

Q: How long have you been an FCBA member and what is the value of FCBA membership?

A: I have been an FCBA member since I joined the FCC after law school in 1995. The FCBA is not a replaceable entity; it’s an invaluable help to the careers of many and provides a wonderful outlet for professional growth and leadership different from what you might expect from your job.
