28th Annual FCBA Charity Auction to be held on November 2

The FCBA Young Lawyers Committee and the FCBA Foundation will hold their 28th Annual Charity Auction on Thursday, November 2, 2017, at the Sphinx Club at the Almas Temple, 1315 K Street, NW, Washington, DC, from approximately 6:00 – 10:00 p.m. Admission is free and the event is open to the public.

Proceeds from this year's Charity Auction will benefit two great, local charities—Supporting and Mentoring Youth Advocates and Leaders (SMYAL) and the FCBA Foundation. In 1984, local youth service professionals and community activists organized a conference after learning that “cross-dressing” youth from local schools were being institutionalized in a psychiatric hospital. From this, SMYAL was founded to meet the needs of LGBT youth in the Washington, DC area. Today, SMYAL supports and empowers youth by creating opportunities to build self-confidence, develop critical life

PRESIDENT'S Message

DEAR FELLOW FCBA MEMBERS:

My brand-new FCBA President's gavel is prominently displayed in my office and will serve as a frequent reminder of the great privilege that I have to serve as your 81st President. The 2017-18 Executive Committee, Chapters and Committees, and our intrepid FCBA staff, are already working hard to prepare for an exciting year. I am not exaggerating when I say that "the FCBA Never Sleeps."

We have just completed a stellar 2016-2017 year under the steady and gracious leadership of Bob Branson. Bob is known for his unwavering loyalty to the FCBA and his tireless efforts have greatly benefitted our membership for decades. Thank you, Bob! Also, thank you to Chris Wright, who completed his year as Past President. In this role, Chris calmly and adeptly led the Nominations Committee, which presented an outstanding slate of nominees for leadership roles in the FCBA.

The FCBA Foundation is one of the pillars of the FCBA. Under Kathy Kirby's strategic leadership, the Foundation granted significant scholarships to college and law students, and internship stipends to the next generation of FCBA members. Thank you to all FCBA Foundation Trustees, volunteers, and organizational and individual donors. Together, we are truly changing lives for the better. This year, the Foundation will continue to thrive in the hands of Darah Franklin and Aspa Paroutsas.

Your FCBA Executive Committee and I look forward to working with you to continue providing great programming and services. Members include: Lee Petro, Megan Stull, Natalie Roisman, Josh Turner, Ari Fitzgerald, Bob Branson, Karen Brinkmann, Micah Caldwell, Stacy Fuller, Russ Hanser, Diane Holland, Barry Ohlson, Roger Sherman, Angie Simpson, Krista Witanowski, Joiava Philpott, Robyn Polashuk, Anne Swanson and Kristine Fargotstein. We are grateful for the service of our Executive Committee members who recently completed their terms: Rachael Bender, Brendan Carr, Laura Carter, Christine Crowe and Angie Kronenberg.

The Young Lawyers Committee (YLC), capably led by new co-chairs Sean Spivey and Rachel Nemeth, is in full swing, with their ever-popular summer mentoring events kicking off the new year. Mark your calendars for the not-to-be-missed 28th Annual FCBA Charity Auction on November 2.

I sat down with Matt to get his perspective on a successful career in communications law.

Q: What attracted you to the field of communications?

A: As I grew up, I was always interested in the role of government in regulating industry and similar public policy questions, so it's no surprise that I was a government major at Dartmouth. After law school, and a clerkship, I started as an associate at WilmerHale (then Wilmer Cutler & Pickering).

The practice group leader was Bill Lake, and he invited me to give communications law a try. Initially, I was resistant, as I imagined it was all about years-long tariff proceedings and comparative hearings, that sort of thing. However, I was coming into this right at point of the implementation of the 1996 Telecom Act, and a wide range of new statutory terms were being interpreted; thus, statutory interpretation and novel questions of administrative and constitutional law were really at the forefront of many communications projects. So, at the urging of Bill, I tried it and really took to it. As the 1996 Act was at the intersection of law and policy, it was a great fit for my interests. Eventually, I had to seek permission to get out the general litigation practice to be devoted full-time to the communications practice.

After about five years and after having worked with then-US West's Kathleen Abernathy, she became an FCC Commissioner. Bryan Tramont was staffing her office and they approached me about working with her on the 8th Floor. It seemed like the progression was a natural one and I took the plunge, becoming a legal advisor in the Commissioner's office for four years. I am so grateful that as Commissioner Abernathy's legal advisor I had enormous room to explore solutions and to provide my best advice. I certainly worked hard on advancing what I thought were the right principles, consistent with the Commissioner's views. My time at the FCC ended about when Commissioner Abernathy left the agency in 2005.

Q: Have things unfolded in your career more or less the way you planned?

A: I've been at Latham & Watkins for the last 12 years and as I think about it, my vision for a business plan has evolved more or less the way I had anticipated. For example, I had hoped that I could help cable companies and others understand and navigate the range of policies confronting them as they rolled out broadband and voice-over-IP offerings. I spent a decade supporting Time Warner Cable with all of its services, and I later expanded my practice to represent NCTA and other leading players in the cable industry, as well as wireless carriers and traditional telcos. It's been a good mix of clients, and I've been fortunate to be able to balance work involving the FCC with an active slate of both appellate and trial litigation.

On the work/life balance front, I made the decision 12 years ago, as I transitioned from government back to private practice, never to let my law firm role prevent me from being an active and fully engaged member of my family. My wife, Hillary, is also a lawyer who has held positions of significant responsibility, and with three kids, there is always plenty happening on the home front. That balance of work and family involvement is a tough thing to do at times, but because of technology you can work wherever you are and that has helped a lot. I feel as though I've been able to keep that promise I made to myself and my family. And I extend that same flexibility to associates and other colleagues at the firm.

Q: Can you share with us what your most challenging project was?

A: Net Neutrality comes to mind as particularly interesting and challenging – it is a multi-multifaceted issue with complex questions of legal authority, administrative procedure, economic and social policy and politics at play. It is just an enormously complex issue that plays out across several different dimensions. In order to be effective, you can't just argue the law, you have to be sensitive to the pressures and inputs, and so from that perspective it's been among the more challenging issues on which I've been asked to advise clients.

Q: What's something or someone that has surprised or impressed you during your career and why?

A: While I am not surprised by this, I do have to say I've been surrounded by top-notch legal talent I've been privileged to work with during my time at Latham & Watkins, at the FCC, and at Wilmer Cutler. I won't single out anyone by name because there've been so many luminaries and great teachers that I have seen over time. I'm struck how widespread the talent is in our bar.

Q: What do you enjoy reading?

A: Having little to no time to read for pleasure right now is a great source of guilt. I have three very active young kids and a constant backlog of work-related reading, so the best I can manage when I do have a free moment is to delve into my pile of New Yorker magazines.

Get to Know an FCBA MEMBER

Q: Can you share a perspective on pitfalls to avoid or other career advice for those who are just getting started in the communications field?

A: I certainly would suggest that younger lawyers take advantage of the FCBA as a network for jobs and referrals. The FCBA is a great place also to just share ideas. Most FCBA folks are generous and will try to pay it forward and help others, so I would also suggest that those just getting started should reach out to more senior members of the bar for advice or perspective. I think you'd be surprised how happy people are to help one another. On the flipside, because our bar is small, you need to be aware that you develop a reputation and you want it to be a positive one. Character is everything; you don't want to be a needlessly hostile adversary, because today's adversary can be your partner tomorrow.

Q: What's something interesting about you that people are not generally aware of you that are willing to share?

A: I was once in a rodeo. Seriously. Growing up I attended a cowboy camp where I roped cattle and rode horses through the desert. I loved it. I've done barrel racing and I've roped steer. Separately, I also have to say after all these years in DC, I still have a strong and sometimes unhealthy emotional attachment to the New York Yankees.

Q: How long have you been an FCBA member and what is the value of FCBA membership?

A: I've been a member of the FCBA for 20 years; I joined when I started in private practice after my clerkship. Over the years I have been an active member, twice co-chairing the Common Carrier practice committee, serving on the Nominations committee, and consistently attending events as a speaker and audience member. I would say the FCBA is a mainstay in terms of networking, professional development in the communications law field. That really became clear to me recently when I got an e-mail from a local counsel on a case asking why I was not a member of the ABA communications forum. I'm sure it's a great group of folks, but I thought: "Why? We already have this really great bar."

Interested in Hosting an FCBA event?

The FCBA greatly appreciates the support of our members' firms and companies who provide space for our brown bag lunches, committee meetings, and CLE Seminars throughout the year. We are, however, always looking for new locations that can host FCBA events.

In general, we need conference rooms that can seat at least 30 people at tables for brown bag lunches and committee meetings and conference rooms that can seat at least 60 people theatre style for CLE seminars. Firms and companies hosting brown bag lunches provide beverages and desserts; firms and companies hosting CLE seminars provide beverages and snacks. Brown bag lunches are generally held from 12:00 – 1:30 p.m. and CLE seminars are generally held from 12:00 – 2:15 p.m., 3:00 – 5:15 p.m., or 6:00 – 8:30 p.m. Additionally, for CLE seminars we need facilities that can provide technology support for microphones for as many as six speakers on a panel, the ability to tie the house sound system into a teleconference bridge, and video projection capabilities for PowerPoint presentations. If your firm or company has the needed conference room facilities and capabilities and would be willing to host future FCBA activities, please email Kerry Loughney, kerry@fcba.org.

In MEMORIAM

William J. Potts, Jr. (January 1930 – July 2017)

William J. Potts, Jr., former President of the Federal Communications Bar Association, passed away at his home in Glen Echo, Maryland, on July 10, 2017. He was 87.

Bill Potts had a distinguished career in communications law that spanned more than four decades. He was highly regarded as a pioneer in satellite communications law, broadcast signal quality, computer law, intellectual copyright, and international communications law. His natural warmth and genuine interest in people charmed everyone, as did his native intelligence, sense of humor, and his ability to enjoy life.

Born in Germantown, Pennsylvania, and raised on Long Island, Bill seriously considered music as a career, majoring in that subject as an undergraduate at Queens College, City University of New York. An accomplished vocalist, especially of operatic works, he maintained a passion for music, particularly classical music, all his life. (Rumor has it that on a trip to Venice with law partner Michael Bader and their wives, Bill entertained all, including the gondoliers, by singing his favorite operatic arias.)

After graduation from the Georgetown University Law Center in 1958, he accepted a clerkship with the law firm of Andrew G. Haley, with the expectation of legal work in the new and exciting world of space law.

When Haley needed research assistance on a paper he was preparing about the radio frequency used by the Russians' Sputnik satellite upon its launch into orbit in 1957, he turned to Bill, and the young lawyer's future with the firm was set. For decades, the firm was known as Haley, Bader & Potts. The firm's lawyers joined the Seattle-based firm of Garvey Schubert Barer in 2000.

Bill practiced communications law during a significantly formative time in the FCC's history. As General Counsel to the Association for Broadcast Engineering Standards, he was a leader in the fight against what the association considered the degradation of the technical quality of radio by overloading the AM and FM spectrum. He also represented Telecommunications, Inc., at one time the largest cable television provider in the United States, ultimately acquired by Comcast Corporation, and the pioneering competitive long-distance telephone carrier MCI Communications Corporation, now part of Verizon Communications.

In addition to serving on the FCBA's Executive Committee, and chairing and participating in many Association committees, Bill was the Association's President from 1988-1989. He had a lifelong love for baseball, especially the Philadelphia Phillies, and what he called "strange cars," classic French and Italian cars of the 1950s. He could be seen driving the streets of Washington in a vintage Peugeot, Citroen, or Alfa Romeo, and on cue he would share tales of their idiosyncrasies with infectious glee.

Bill is survived by his wife of 66 years, Anne; their daughter, Louise; three grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren. His son, William, predeceased him in 1987.
