PRESIDENT'S Message

DEAR FELLOW MEMBERS:

Summer is coming, and the FCBA is working hard to finish strong with four major events before it hits.

First, the Annual Seminar will be returning to the Omni Homestead Resort from May 17th to May 19th. The Annual Seminar Committee has put together a detail-rich program with eight (8!) panels. In response to popular demand, we'll lead off on Friday with a Privacy discussion that qualified for Virginia CLE credit. We then move to much-needed discussion on Developing a Diverse and Inclusive Workplace, a discussion on the promise and perils of Mid-Band spectrum, and conclude the Friday programming with a Fireside Chat with Ambassador Robert Strayer. On Saturday, we'll lead off with a conversation with Commissioner Michael O'Rielly, then pivot to a discussion of trade and national security issues, get valuable insight from a chat with the Acting Chief of the Office of Economics and Analytics, Giulia McHenry, and finish with a review of Emerging Technology issues. Then the real fun begins, with a Golf Tournament sponsored by Verizon, a Tennis Tournament sponsored by Harris, Wiltshire & Grannis, a visit to the Barcova Bear Company and Mini-Golf organized by the Young Lawyers Committee, or a Naturalist Hike in the Cascades Gorge. We'll wrap up Saturday with Game Night and a Dinner Buffet, and then work off the buffet with a Fun Run/Walk (or crawl) with Brooks Harlow on Sunday morning.

Next, on Tuesday, June 4th, the FCBA will return to the 1757 Golf Club for the 23rd Annual Robert Emmet Lee Memorial Golf Tournament. Over the year, the Tournament has raised more than $40,000 for the FCBA Foundation, centered on simple concept – Do good and have fun at the same time. Please contact co-chairs Arturo Chang, Henry Gola and Alex Moyer if you would like to donate prizes for the tournament or participate on the committee.

Two weeks later, we will be honored with comments by FCC Commissioner Geoffrey Starks at our Annual Lunch on June 19th. This will be Commissioner Starks' first FCBA event and we look forward to hearing from him. We will also be acknowledging the great work of the FCBA Foundation's scholarship and stipend programs for high school and law students.

We'll wrap up June with the Summer Reception on June 25th at Microsoft's Innovation and Policy Center. At the reception, I will have the distinct honor of presenting the 2019 Excellence in Government Service award to Kris Monteith, Chief of the FCC's Wireline Bureau. In its 12th year, the Award recognizes the outstanding government service in the communications field, and you can review Ms. Monteith's biography on page 1. If you are interested in sponsoring the event, the registration form is on page 27.

Tuesday, May 7, 6:00 – 8:15 p.m. Lawyering Social: Legal Issues on Social and Digital Media

The FCBA Intellectual Property and Mass Media Committees will sponsor a CLE on Tuesday, May 7 from 6:00 – 8:15 p.m. entitled “Lawyering Social: Legal Issues on Social and Digital Media.” This program will be held at Wiley Rein LLP, 1776 K Street, NW.

As the lines between old and new media blur, and broadcasters become more active in the digital world, whether it be through social media platforms like Facebook and Twitter, or by posting their content online through their own websites, through platforms like YouTube, streaming their content directly to the consumer, or podcasting, lawyers representing these broadcasters need to understand the legal landmines that may await them in the cyber-jungle. In this CLE, we will examine the basic legal issues arising at the intersection of traditional media and the new social and digital media, and explore the roles of the FCC and FTC in addressing these issues.

To register, click here or go to the FCBA Website – Calendar of Events or use the form on page 22.

When can companies take material from social media or other Internet sites, and use it on their traditional media platforms? Can you take videos from YouTube and feature them in your 11:00 news? Can you take a photo from a website and use it to illustrate a story on your broadcast station’s website? What liability do you have for posting material on Facebook, Twitter or other social media sites? Who owns what you post on social media sites? Are you liable for what your employees post online? Can you encourage your audience to post photos or videos on your website or social media pages? What liability do you have for their posts? What music licenses do you need to produce online videos or podcasts? These and other issues will be explored in this first panel.

What are the FTC’s rules for protecting the privacy and security of personal information collected via social and digital media platforms? Are there any special disclosure requirements for online political ads under Federal or state law? Are station contests run through social media subject to any special rules? What liability do you have for retweeting a potentially libelous statement? What if a social media post is read in a country that has less favorable libel laws?

These issues impact all telecommunications sectors, including the wireless, wireline, satellite, and broadcast industries, as well as the missions of federal government agencies. At this CLE, experts representing the U.S. government and communications industries will give an overview of the WRC-19 process and what its outcomes will mean for FCBA members.

Golf and Tennis. Participate in the golf outing and enjoy an afternoon on the Omni Homestead Resort's Old Course, completed in 1892 and distinguished as home of the nation's oldest first tee in continuous use. If you would rather play tennis, join your fellow FCBA friends in a round robin tournament.

The Omni Homestead's Naturalist Hike in Cascades Gorge. On this three-hour tour designed for adults and children alike, you'll be led and entertained by a naturalist through a series of waterfalls alongside a deep gorge trail in the Allegheny Mountains. Learn about unusual flora and fauna in this semi-tropical environment, as well as the medicinal and edible properties of many local plants. It's a three-mile journey and one of the most beautiful in the region. There are two departure times: 1:15 or 1:45 p.m. Bottled water is provided. Thanks to Lynne Milne for sponsoring part of the activity!

Visit the Bacova Beer Company and Mini Golf. Bacova is a small, family run brewery in Bath County, Virginia, about a mile away from the Omni Homestead. They operate a five-barrel brew house with the purpose of creating small-batch, wonderfully flavorful beers. All their equipment is made of the highest quality, food grade stainless steel and is purposely made to brew beer. After sampling a taste of the region, join the group for a game of mini golf at Mini Cascades Miniature Golf Course on the Homestead property. Individuals are responsible for their own food, beverage, and golf fees on-site. Although there is no up-front registration fee for these, we request that you sign up on the registration form, so we know how many people to expect.

1757 Golf Club

23rd Annual FCBA Foundation Golf Tournament to be held Tuesday, June 4 Same Course! Same fees!

On Tuesday, June 4, we will host our annual FCBA Golf Tournament at 1757 Golf Club in Dulles, Virginia. 1757 Golf Club is known for its pristine golf course and beautiful facilities, and is located close to downtown DC. Thanks to the shrewd negotiating skills of the Golf Committee, we are excited to come back to this venue for the second year without any fee increase. There is truly no excuse to join your colleagues for a wonderful afternoon of fun!

Our transition to 1757 was a great success! The number of players substantially grew and the course presented its challenging form to everyone that attended. The current champions of the FCBA Golf Cup is team Wireless Infrastructure Association so put your Eagle Foursomes together and compete for this year's cup!

In addition, even if you cannot attend, you can help "rebalance" the demographic tilt of the tournament by directly contributing to this effort by donating $50 to the Golf Stipend fund. Such funds would be applied to assist young FCBA lawyers, law students, clerks, and interns with the golf fees and allow them to join the tournament.

Consistent with past years, we will continue to start the tourney in the afternoon this year so that our workaholic friends can get in a few hours at the office (or plenty of time to warm up on the range). Shotgun start will be at 1:00 p.m. followed by a delicious post-round Buffet BBQ Dinner.

As always, all of the proceeds from the Tournament go straight to the FCBA Foundation to support its wonderful programs, including the Scholarship programs and the Summer Legal Internship program. Over the years, the Tournament has raised over $400,000 for the FCBA Foundation charities, all under the auspices of getting together with your colleagues for an enjoyable day of golf! Our goal and motto: "What a great concept: Do good and have fun at the same time!" We hope you can join us this year!

See registration details on page 25 of this newsletter and sign up today! The Golf Committee always welcomes prize donations or those interested in helping out! Contact Arturo Chang at Arturo.Chang@WIA.org if you want to contribute!

Claude Aiken

By: Laura Phillips

On a beautiful sunny spring day, Claude Aiken and I met for lunch, sampling from the plethora of new restaurants now open at the DC Wharf. Yes, the DC Wharf close to the current FCC headquarters. Claude left the Federal Communications Commission a bit over a year ago. Since that time, Claude assumed the leadership of WISPA, the Wireless Internet Service Providers Association. He is the first ever President and CEO of WISPA and we had a great time sharing french fries and talking about his career progression inside and outside of government. In fact, Claude got his start as a lawyer at the FCC. I was delighted to be able to get to know Claude a little better.

Q: What attracted you to the field of communications?

A: I have always been interested in technology and the intersection of technology and law in particular. It really started in college when as a cheapskate I decided it would be fun to build my own computer. So I did. Between college and law school I worked for a year at a small law firm doing a variety of things. The managing partner happened to learn of my interest in technology and that I had geeked out in the past. He suggested that it would be great if I could build computers for the firm, and securely network the two offices of the firm, which I did. How's that for the intersection of law and technology?

I got an Information Law Certificate as part of my time in law school. That program was heavy on Intellectual Property because that was the big thing then. I sensed in even testing the waters afterwards that there might be a limited market for a young IP lawyer who didn't happen to have hard science in his background. I had been an English major in college. Luckily a mentor suggested that I look at the Federal Communications Commission and I had the opportunity to interview for the Honors program. I have to say that worked out very well for me. Looking back, the whole Honors program interview experience was pretty daunting, as you were interviewed by a several panels of senior folks at the FCC. The panels typically included bureau chiefs and other luminaries. At the time I interviewed I had no idea how experienced and significant to the agency these people were. I have to say I'm still a bit amused and struck by the composition of my last interview panel; it included then-General Counsel Matthew Berry and his Deputy General Counsel Ajit Pai! That is one of the great things about the communications bar, you just never know who you will work with again and in what capacity.

Q: Tell me about your career progression. Did things unfold more or less the way you planned?

A: I can't really say I had a long-term career plan for myself when I first started working at the FCC because I had a lot to learn and experience and I concentrated on that. I started out at the agency in the Wireline Competition Bureau, specifically in the Pricing Policy Division. I got thrown into then-Chairman Kevin Martin FCC's complex intercarrier compensation reform items. I then worked in different divisions in the Bureau and by 2009 I became very involved in the National Broadband Plan efforts underway at the FCC, both in developing and implementing the plan. Then I worked in the Competition Policy Division of the Wireline Bureau on a variety of items and later in the General Counsel's office on the wireline agenda review team where I had the opportunity really to work as a lawyer's lawyer. Then

I went back to the Wireline Competition Bureau as a Deputy Division Chief before being called to the front office of the General Counsel's Office, where I had the opportunity to work with and for Jonathan Sallet, which included a brief stint as a Wireline Advisor to then FCC Chairman Tom Wheeler. Following that, I had the good fortune to work with Commissioner Mignon Clyburn for a year and a half. So, in my almost decade at the FCC, I was fortunate to work with many wonderful people in a variety of roles and to be a part of many different and significant initiatives.

But I never in my wildest dreams thought that my first job out of the FCC would be leading a trade association. WISPA has been huge learning experience for me. I deal with a wide range of issues including figuring out how best to serve the interests of 800+ members who come from different backgrounds and have different goals, hiring and managing staff, architecting policy positions and advocacy strategy, and encouraging member engagement. In terms of major issues we confront, WISPA spends a lot of time thinking about how the FCC goes about making spectrum available. While the FCC has historically licensed shopping mall-sized licenses our members really need something more akin to mall kiosks. And when you look at spectrum in lots of rural or markets there is lots of excess capacity that is lying fallow, but the transaction costs are too high to make it worthwhile for larger operators to deal with very small wireless ISPs. So educating policymakers about what a boon for rural broadband smart spectrum policy would be is always a top priority. And of course we watch developments on infrastructure and subsidies to ensure that non-traditional providers like WISPs are not left out, or worse, overbuilt with subsidies.

Going back to the long term career plan, I sincerely thought after a few years at the FCC I would move to work in a law firm, into private practice. So far that hasn't happened and I am learning so much in my new role at WISPA. Actually, if you told me 11 years ago when I started working at the FCC that I be running a trade association today, I would've told you you were crazy!

Q: What's the most interesting or challenging thing that you did at the FCC and that occupies you in your current position?

A: At the FCC: two things. First, implementing the National Broadband Plan was a huge learning experience: dealing with multiple federal agencies and trying to get them to implement a plan they did not come up with or have buy-in for was quite a challenge. Second, managing the drafting and work streams that went into the Commission's 2015 Open Internet Order. Regularly turning drafts around in the wee hours of morning on a complex policy and political issues like net neutrality was quite something.

At WISPA, I'm still running around like crazy. There's a whole range of membership engagement, policy, legal, and political work that all has to get done, much less putting on trade shows and managing a budget. And engaging very small members who do not have a lot of free time to opine on policy issues is always a challenge. When you realize that WISPA's average member has under 500 broadband customers, and they may be a sole proprietor or somebody with one or two employees, it makes a lot of sense that they do not have time to leaf through the latest 50 page NPRM and give me their thoughts on it.

Q: What's something or someone that has surprised or impressed you during your career and why?

A: I have to say I am really grateful I got to start my career at the FCC. Working as a young lawyer with so many dedicated public servants who are steeped in FCC law and policy was quite an honor. It was thrilling to get questions answered by "the" person who had spent years of their lives living and breathing that issue. For example, getting a VoIP technical question answered by the author of the SIP protocol is kind of terrifying. But as I spent more time in the government I became more impressed by the brilliant persistence of FCC staff. People who often work long hours, doing their best to faithfully apply the Communications Act and develop policy in the public interest, without any public recognition for what they achieve. That is truly impressive.

Q: What do you enjoy reading?

A: I tend to be a nonfiction reader. My wife makes fun of me because my idea of a great beach read is something like "Thinking, Fast and Slow" by Economic Nobel Laureate Daniel Kahneman or Meachem's biography of Andrew Jackson. As an undergraduate English major I tended to read a lot of fiction, so my present preference for nonfiction may just mean I was over-fictioned earlier in my academic career.

Q: Can you share perspective on pitfalls to avoid or other career advice for those who are just getting started in the communications field?

A: My advice would be pretty simple: Don't limit yourself, be open to trying new things, and be bold. Don't be afraid to reach out to those in the field who you admire or might like to emulate. Some of the best connections, advice, and career advancement opportunities I've had have come from things that I did that were outside of my comfort zone. One of the great things about the FCBA is that people active in our bar are often willing to help you. They are generous with their time and talent in providing perspective that can be so helpful early on in your career.

Q: What is something interesting about you people are not generally aware of that you are willing to share?

A: I used to bike to work a lot, particularly when I was at the FCC. So I think people at the Commission got used to me running through the halls in full-on cyclist gear, although I don't think I ever wore that into a meeting. My penchant for bike riding to work required me to have an elaborate system of swapping suits and shirts at various times in the week so that I would always be prepared. I continue to bike when I can, but not quite as much as when I had it easily built into my commute.

Q: How long have you been an FCBA member and what is the value of FCBA membership?

A: I have probably been a member of the FCBA since around 2009 when I joined the FCC. My impetus was that someone encouraged to join and to get to know and be part of the Young Lawyers Committee. That was a great decision. I'd also say the FCBA is unparalleled in terms of offering a range of opportunities for both networking and invaluable professional education. There are very few options for folks looking to become educated on communications law issues outside the FCBA, and there really is no need to go anywhere else because the FCBA does such a great job.

Interested in learning more about another FCBA member? If there is a member you'd like to know better, please contact Laura Phillips at laura.phillips@dbr.com.
