Michelle Carey Selected to Receive 2022 FCBA Excellence in Government Service Award

Michelle Carey has been selected to receive the FCBA's 15th annual award for outstanding government service. The award was first given in 2008 to recognize individuals with long-term careers in federal government in the communications field who are dedicated to the pursuit of excellence in public service.

Michelle M. Carey

Michelle M. Carey, currently a Deputy Chief in the Media Bureau at the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), has worked at the FCC since 1994 when she was initially hired as a staff attorney in the Enforcement Division of the Common Carrier Bureau. More recently, from 2017 to early 2022, Ms. Carey was Chief of the Media Bureau. In this capacity, she oversaw the Commission's Modernization of Media Regulation Initiative, which sought to update regulations for the digital age; the establishment of a framework for the Next-Generation TV Standard, ATSC 3.0; and Media Ownership

Reform. During her 12 years in the Media Bureau, Ms. Carey also helped shape the Bureau's policies designed to facilitate competition in the multichannel video programming marketplace, such those related to Effective Competition and Local Franchising. In addition, she assisted in the implementation of key federal legislation including STELAR, CVAA and the CALM Act as well as in the development of rules relating to the first-ever broadcast Incentive Auction and the subsequent Post-Auction Transition. Prior to her service in the Media Bureau, she was a Senior Advisor to Assistant Secretary Lawrence E. Strickling at the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) in the Department of Commerce. At NTIA, she helped craft the rules for a key Recovery Act program, the $4.4 billion Broadband Technology Opportunities Program. Over the course of her career, Ms.

PRESIDENT'S Message

DEAR FCBA MEMBERS,

At the end of April, I had the privilege of giving introductory remarks at Session II of the Third Annual FCBA Women's Summit Series, with a focus on the Future of Work. I discussed how as a child, my idea of work in 2022 would have involved flying cars, lots of robots, and meetings via hologram.

All of the technologies depicted on "The Jetsons" have not yet come to fruition, although the past two years have witnessed the rise in prominence of video conferencing. Rather than becoming more robotic during the pandemic, however, I have been pleasantly surprised how much of the conversation has centered on our humanity, with terms like "self-care", "mindfulness", and "caregiving" being frequently used.

With that in mind, we're taking time in May to focus on wellness and to commemorate Mental Health Awareness Month. On May 17, the Diversity Committee held a program entitled "Mind over Matters – A Panel Discussion & Guided Meditation." This program made space for discussion about mental health in the legal profession and provided perspectives on how to pursue and give support. Kiara Ortiz and I co-moderated a discussion with Natalie Roisman, Dina Epstein, and Kiara Imani. As I noted in my Women's Summit Series remarks, the pandemic has been a source of collective trauma that we're just beginning to process. I hope this session highlighted to FCBA members that there is support in our community in good times and in bad, and that there is no shame when it comes to having mental health struggles, whatever their source.

May 19 is Global Accessibility Awareness Day, and the Diversity Committee has organized a program to allow FCBA members to participate. The event, which will be held at 3:00 p.m. ET, will feature a panel moderated by Josh Pila and Courtney Tolerico on government perspectives on accessibility, featuring Suzy Rosen Singleton, Timothy Creagan, and Rebecca Bond. That will be followed by a panel on industry perspectives on accessibility with Blake Reid, Sam Joehl, Rachel Wolkowitz, and Rachel Nemeth in conversation with Martha Heller and Yosef Getachew. There will also be some demos of accessibility technology in action. I'd like to thank Gray Television for sponsoring closed captioning and American Sign Language interpretation for this special event.

I hope you did not miss the opportunity on May 3 to learn more about e-sports, which has grown into a formidable industry with lots of gnarly legal and policy issues. The Southern California Chapter, Emerging Issues in Technology Committee, and Covington & Burling co-sponsored a CLE on "E-Sports: New Developments and Opportunities in the $2 Billion Industry," which delved into hot topics like accessibility, advertising,

On May 3, the Southern California Chapter and the Emerging Issues in Tech Committee hosted a panel on Esports: New Developments and Opportunities in the $2 Billion Industry. Elvis Stumbergs, a privacy attorney at Electronic Arts, moderated the conversation among the panelists: Roger Quiles, one of the world's first attorneys with a dedicated esports practice, offered his perspective representing esports teams and players. Stuart Irvin, Of Counsel at Covington & Burling, provided an overview of the esports economy and explained the many different opportunities that lawyers, as practitioners and community members, have to volunteer and work with players, teams, companies, and other affiliated entities. All the panelists emphasized the potential growth in the esports space and the number of ways that lawyers can be involved on personal and professional levels, as well as the many legal issues that are arising in an industry that relies on marketing, fans, players, publishers, and a fast internet connection! PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE content moderation, in-game currencies, and privacy. Thanks to our all-star panel and moderators – Elvis Stumbergs, Roger R. Quiles, Veda Cruz, and Stuart Irvin – for participating in this fabulous event.

Another important program on a topic of tremendous interest to the FCBA community occurred on May 9. The Wireline and Wireless Telecommunications Committees co-sponsored a CLE on “Implementation of the FCC’s Broadband Data Collection.” We were blessed with an amazing panel of key FCC staff discussing the broadband data collection, and a panel of prominent stakeholders who provided their perspectives. Special thanks to Jason Neal, Jean Kiddoo, Chelsea Fallon, Sean Spivey, Kirk Burgee, Rebekah Goodheart, Chris Wiczorek, Mike Romano, Christine Sanquist, Lynn Follansbee, and Brendan Haggerty for their participation.

On May 11, our eleven national chapters presented “Communications on Call: Evolving Approaches to Natural Disasters and Climate Change”, which focused on safety, in particular on emergency preparedness and response. This event explored government frameworks for emergency communications, drew lessons from recent events, and showcased innovative uses of emerging technologies. Thanks to our speakers and moderators Brenda Villanueva, Jackie McCarthy, Debra Jordan, Michael Caron, Robert Osborn, David Konuch, Jorge Catala, Budge Currier, Torry Somers, Jim Tomlinson, Sara Baxenberg, Can Comertoglu, Richard Chapkis, and Jane Whang.

I hope you joined our International Telecommunications Committee for their Lunch and Learn on May 12. Charles Glass, Derek Khlopin, and Scott Patrick discussed the work of the Office of Spectrum Management of the National Telecommunications and Information Administration in the U.S. Department of Commerce. It was a riveting discussion on an Office so important to our nation’s technology leadership.

Our State and Local Committee took a closer look at a particular aspect of safety with its CLE “Navigating the Logistics, Cost Recovery and Coordination of Pole Attachments for Wildfire Mitigation and System Hardening” on Monday, May 16. This program explored the significant impact in terms of utility pole replacements and cost recovery in response to natural disasters, and dug into tough legal issues like reverse preemption. FCBA members certainly benefited from this fascinating discussion, which featured Debrea Terwilliger, Letha Tawney, Steve Capozzi, Catherine Sandoval, Matthew Tuchman, Ben Aron, Torry Sommers, and Floyd Self.

Looking ahead, I have the privilege of presenting this year’s Excellence in Government Service Award to Michelle M. Carey, who is currently serving as a Deputy Chief in the FCC Media Bureau. Join us as we celebrate Michelle at a Summer Reception to be held in-person on June 28 on the rooftop patio at the offices of Hogan & Lovells in Washington, D.C. As many of you know, Michelle has worked at the FCC for more than 25 years, and I recall interacting with her when I was a law student intern in the Common Carrier Bureau. In addition to her work on wireline policy, Michelle is renowned for her expertise in media issues – and we cannot forget her efforts to increase broadband access while she worked at the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) in the Department of Commerce. The nation is so thankful for Michelle’s dedication to public service, and I look forward to having the chance to raise a glass in her honor with many FCBA members at the end of June.

Finally, I’d like to close this column with a hearty congratulations to our Executive Director, Kerry Loughney, who will be getting married this month. The FCBA sends along its best wishes for a blissful future. We are so grateful to have you, and we hope your special day is perfect.

Until next month,
Megan Anne Stull
President, FCBA – The Tech Bar
