CHAIRMAN'S DINNER

Chairman's Dinner appears to qualify as a widely attended gathering. The value of an individual ticket to the dinner is $275.00. Most employees of the Federal Communications Commission may be directly invited to attend the dinner as guests of individuals and organizations purchasing tables or tickets. In most cases, individuals and organizations may issue invitations to the Chairman's Dinner without the involvement of the FCBA. Some agencies, departments and branches of the Federal Government, however, apply additional stipulations above the regulations issued by the Office of Government Ethics. Individuals who have signed the Administration's Ethics pledge cannot accept invitations from most registered lobbying organizations or registered lobbyists. While this event has qualified as a widely-attended-gathering in previous years, each FCC employee is required to obtain individual ethics clearance based on matters they are working on within the Commission. Employees of the Commerce Department are required to obtain individual ethics clearance through the Department's Office of General Counsel. Invitations to Members of Congress, Congressional Staff, and employees of the Department of State must be issued by the FCBA. Contact the FCBA for additional information.

Requests for invitations to be sent from the FCBA must be emailed to Stan Zenor (stan@fcba.org) by Friday, November 22, 2013.

income children summer is not a vacation but a missed opportunity. Horizons addresses this problem by providing year-round academic enrichment to low-income children enrolled at H. D. Cooke, Bancroft, and Rock Creek Forest Elementary Schools in DC and MD. Horizons' programs are proven to reverse summer learning loss for low-income children, instill confidence, and improve reading and reasoning skills. The 300 students enrolled in Horizons' program for 2014 will attend for nine consecutive years to make a difference in their lives, preparing them for high school and beyond. The FCBA Foundation will use proceeds from the Charity Auction to support its annual college scholarship program.

The Charity Auction is one of Washington, DC's premier "must-attend" events for the communications industry. The event features a live auction hosted by a professional auctioneer, silent auctions, and raffle drawings. Attendees should expect surprises and new and exciting prizes building on last year's event (nearly $115,000 raised), including vacation packages; electronics; tickets to Verizon Center events, concerts, theater shows, and various sporting events (including Redskins, Wizards, Capitals, and Nationals games); dinners; lunches; spa packages; and gift certificates from area businesses.

Over the past 23 years, the Charity Auction has raised more than $1.3 million for DC-based organizations, including the DC Children's Advocacy Center, STEP/I Have a Dream, the Charitable Coalition for Children with Cancer, Kids Enjoy Exercise Now, Fair Chance, Kid Power-DC, Horton's Kids, Bright Beginnings, Project Wait No Longer, Sitar Arts Center, and THC – Housing Families, Transforming Lives.

If you have any questions about the Auction, please contact Justin Faulb (202-659-6677, jfaulb@eckertseamans.com) or Kerry Loughney (202-293-4000, kerry@fcba.org).

Interested in Hosting an FCBA event?

The FCBA greatly appreciates the support of our members' firms and companies who provide space for our brown bag lunches, committee meetings, and CLE Seminars throughout the year. We are, however, always looking for new locations that can host FCBA events. We will be experimenting with some new presentation technology in future CLE seminars, which require more technical support than we have needed in the past.

In general terms, we need conference rooms that can seat at least 30 (more if possible) people at tables for brown bag lunches and committee meetings and conference rooms that can seat a minimum of 60 for CLE seminars. Firms and companies hosting brown bag lunches provide beverages and desserts; firms and companies hosting CLE seminars provide beverages and snacks. CLE seminars are generally held from 6:00 – 8:30 p.m. Additionally, for CLE seminars we need facilities that can provide technology support for microphones for as many as six speakers on a panel, the ability to tie the house sound system into a teleconference bridge, video projection capabilities for PowerPoint presentations, and access to the internet for Webinar services. If your firm or company has the needed conference room facilities and capabilities and would be willing to host future FCBA activities, please email Stan Zenor, stan@fcba.org, or Kerry Loughney, kerry@fcba.org.

FCBA LUNCHEON WITH FCC ACTING CHAIRWOMAN CLYBURN on September 24

Lauren Van Wazer, Vice President, Global Public Policy, Akamai Technologies Inc.

Interviewed by: Laura Phillips

This month I sat down with Lauren Van Wazer, Vice President, Global Public Policy for Akamai Technologies Inc. Lauren has had a number of fascinating jobs in and outside the communications field over the course of her career. I was delighted to have a chance to catch up with her over a great lunch outdoors on a sunny day in September.

Q: How did you come to work in the field of communications?

A: My first full-time job was at AT&T's Northern Virginia headquarters as a network engineer. Yes, I started my career out of college as an engineer before becoming a lawyer. While I had been interested in law as a graduate field, I was also interested in possibly doing a joint J.D./PhD program in cognitive psychology – focusing on the interplay between cognitive science and the law in areas like the validity of eyewitness testimony or techniques for jury selection. Someone who was in the field suggested that I first try law school before spending many years getting this joint credential so I went to Georgetown for the first year at night and switched over to full-time because I found I liked law so much and I never pursued the PhD.

Following law school, I did an appellate clerkship in the Sixth Circuit in Ann Arbor, Michigan. It's really kind of amazing thinking back how much was happening all at once, I graduated from law school in May, had a baby in June, and then my husband and I packed up a U-Haul truck and moved to Ann Arbor for my clerkship. After that I worked at Arnold and Porter as an associate doing environmental and intellectual property law, both areas that I could use some of my engineering background. Once I had a second child, I decided to stay at home for about six years. In 1999 when I re-entered the workforce, I began working at the FCC. A well known FCBA member, Diane Cornell, hired me. My engineering background helped in a lot of ways in my time at the Commission. I spent six years in OET and worked in the intersection of law, policy, and technology and, most importantly, worked for truly top-notch professionals like Julie Knapp. After leaving the Commission, I worked for Cox Enterprises in their DC policy shop for several years then had a stint at the Department of Energy, and then two wonderful years working at the White House, first in OMB's Counsel's office and then in the Office of Science and Technology as their lead on cybersecurity policy. Then, in April, I started my new position with Akamai, a major provider of content delivery and cloud infrastructure services. Akamai has been a key innovator in the Internet ecosystem and, for me, it's a real privilege to be part of an organization with such a great and continuing record of achievements in this space.

Q: Has your career progressed the way you envisioned?

A: Well, my career has not progressed in any straight line, predictable pattern. However I'm happy that I've done many things that were a lot of fun and along the way I have taken lots of twists and turns and zigzags and risks which overall have turned very well. The many changes made over the course of my career has given me a certain philosophy, namely that you need to take responsibility for your own career and not be afraid to take risks and, perhaps most importantly, you need to believe in yourself. Sometimes taking a whole new direction can be a risk and it turns out even better than you think it will, even if it turns out not to be exactly the position you thought it was. It's important to look for mentors at every level at every stage in a career. Ironically, some of the great mentors I have had actually have been people that worked for me rather than always being my supervisors or more senior members of the bar.

Q: Can you share a perspective on pitfalls to avoid or other career advice for those who are just getting started in the communications field?

A: When looking at a career you have to take a long-term view. It's also important to think of yourself as a lifelong student and strive to learn something new every day. Approach any job by thinking about what special skill or quality you can bring to it – your unique added value. I know lawyers tend to be fairly risk adverse but I would suggest always trying to get comfortable outside of your comfort zone and to try new things.

Q: What is the most challenging part of your current position and why?

A: I am currently Vice President, Global Public Policy for Akamai. This is a newly created position to be the head of public policy for the company worldwide. It's really exciting to work directly with engineers, business people and lawyers at the crosscutting parts of technology and policy. I am energized by what we are doing every day. We operate in nearly 90 different countries, so there's also a real international focus to the position.

Q: What's impressed you most about people you've worked with and why?

A: I know it probably sounds a little trite but I've been so impressed by the dedication of people at the FCC. I also feel as though the FCBA is a very warm bar. I often feel like I'm dealing with members of my extended family when dealing with FCBA members. I would also say in my current position at Akamai, I understand why it's consistently listed as one of the best places to work. There are so many incredibly smart and incredibly nice people. The ideas are always flowing, which keeps it interesting. The company truly believes in the mission of innovation.

Q: What are you reading now?

A: I'm reading Katherine Boo's "behind the beautiful forever." The book before that was Mark Bittman's Eat Vegan before 6:00. I like both fiction and nonfiction. I like particularly reading books where I can learn about other countries and cultures.

Q: What's something interesting about you that people are not generally aware of you are willing to share?

A: Well, I learned how to fly a plane before I learned how to drive a car. My dad was a flight instructor in central New Jersey and so I hung out at the airport and took flying lessons from him on the weekends. Then I discovered boys and my dad did not see me nearly as much over the weekends to go flying once that happened. I also love interior design and have three large, active dogs, which may be an inherent conflict in interest with my love of interior design.

Q: How long have you been an FCBA member and what is the value of FCBA membership?

A: Oddly, I remember going to an Annual Seminar with my husband when my sons were small boys before I was even a member. I joined the FCBA in 1999 when I joined the FCC. Over the years I've been very active in the FCBA, running committees and as an officer. Participation in the FCBA is a great way as a younger lawyer, and even as a more mature one, to learn your trade and to meet a lot of people who are active in the bar and very knowledgeable experts on everything pertaining to communications and yes, technology.

Is there an FCBA member you'd like to see profiled in future columns? If so, please contact Laura Phillips at laura.phillips@dbr.com.

BUSINESS ATTIRE

Pursuant to the Office of Government Ethics regulation on widely-attended gatherings (5 C.F.R. 2635.204(g)(2)), the Chairman's Dinner appears to qualify as a widely attended gathering. The value of an individual ticket to the dinner is $275.00. Most employees of the Federal Communications Commission may be directly invited to attend the dinner as guests of individuals and organizations purchasing tables or tickets. In most cases, individuals and organizations may issue invitations to the Chairman's Dinner without the involvement of the FCBA. Some agencies, departments and branches of the Federal Government, however, apply additional stipulations above the regulations issued by the Office of Government Ethics. Individuals who have signed the Administration's Ethics pledge cannot accept invitations from most registered lobbying organizations or registered lobbyists. While this event has qualified as a widely-attended-gathering in previous years, each FCC employee is required to obtain individual ethics clearance based on matters they are working on within the Commission. Employees of the Commerce Department are required to obtain individual ethics clearance through the Department's Office of General Counsel. Invitations to Members of Congress, Congressional Staff, and employees of the Department of State must be issued by the FCBA. Contact the FCBA for additional information. Requests for invitations to be sent from the FCBA must be emailed to Stan Zenor (stan@fcba.org) and received by Friday, November 22, 2013.
