TMT LAW & POLICY CERTIFICATE PROGRAM

The Technology, Media, and Telecom (TMT) Law and Policy Certificate Program is the academic enrichment and skills development component of the FCBA Diversity Pipeline Program. It advances the mission of the Program to attract, develop, train, and support law students with diverse backgrounds and perspectives who are interested in pursuing legal careers in TMT law and policy.

To prepare law students for internships and other employment opportunities in the TMT sector, the TMT Certificate Program provides a comprehensive but accessible introduction to the key principles, statutes, and regulations that are foundational to the practice of TMT law and policy development. It examines TMT from a legal, policy, and practice-oriented perspective, requiring only a committed effort to learn — no prior TMT legal or industry knowledge is required or expected. The TMT Certificate Program provides a lawyer’s and policy professional’s approach to the myriad legal and policy issues confounding TMT organizations, the courts, and lawmakers. The TMT Certificate Program will focus on significant recent developments and the interplay of law, technology, business models, and consumer expectations.

The TMT Certificate Program consists of six (6) virtual learning sessions that cover the following substantive areas of law: Administrative Law, Antitrust, Artificial Intelligence, Media and Content Regulation, Broadband (Wireline and Wireless) Regulation, Privacy, Data and Cyber Security, and other regulatory and legislative issues impacting the TMT industry sector. In addition, the Certificate Program includes a separate module on various styles of oral and written communication, advocacy, and workplace and client interactions.

Participating students also engage in a mock comment drafting and ex parte meeting exercise, designed to provide a practical, hands-on introduction to both written and oral regulatory policy advocacy at a federal agency. This exercise allows students to practice delivering their presentations to practitioners in a small group meeting and receive valuable feedback.

While completion of the TMT Certificate Program is required for Diversity Pipeline Program Interns, it is open to all Diversity Pipeline Program applicants. Upon satisfactory completion of the TMT Certificate Program requirements, participants receive a Certificate of Achievement from the FCBA.
